Continuation of Exhibit shown or demonstration conducted, If Yes, brief description:

The examiner stated that he would consider the applicants arguments. Since the instant specification is directed to an EL device, the examiner feels that the applicants have support for claims 27, 30-34, 36-46, and 76 because the specification describes materials having a band gap and in view of the arguments stated in the last response. Claims 54-75 and 77 relate to the use of polyvinylcarbazol polymers and these are commensurate in scope with the instant disclosure. The examiner also feels that claim 78 is supported because of the list of materials used are directly from the specification. The examiner is not convinced at this time that there is support for claims 25, 26, 29, and 35 but may reconsider his position. Claim 28 may need some additional explanation since Shirasaki describes conductive materials.
